foolish. For a supposedly friendly country to do a thing like that is very foolish. Of course, if we don't take action they will probably go on doing it."

Allen Agrees

Rep. Leo Allen, R., Ill., a member of the powerful GOP steering committee agreed with Bloom. He said he thought "this would be a good time to assert ourselves most emphatically."

Rep. John E. Rankin, D., Miss., said that he frankly "can't imagine any country the American air force saved shooting at an American plane."

"It is one of the most unfortunate situations in years," he said.

The United States, meanwhile, missing plane were all crew members.

Diplomats looked to Belgrade for an official statement from Marshal Tito, explaining the incidents and answering the exceptionally sharp notes he has received from the British and American governments. Both governments condemned the Yugoslav actions around Trieste.

Combined with joint publication of the Anglo-American notes, one of which was dispatched three months ago, was an allied force headquarters statement in Caserta, Italy, charging Yugoslav officials with "a complete misrepresentation of facts."

The Caserta statement referred to an account distributed by the Tanjug news agency and Belgrade radio Aug. 13 about a clash in Gorizia between two Yugoslav officers and a civilian crowd.

Tanjug said the officers were attacked "by fascists armed with truncheons, bombs and revolvers." The allied headquarters statement said the Yugoslavs began the scuffle themselves.

Army authorities in Caserta announced that the plane which vanished yesterday apparently was shot down. Fifteen minutes after passing over Klagenfurt, in the British zone of Austria, it radioed that it was under fire from tracer bullets and anti-aircraft fire.

Nothing more was heard from the plane. A British search plane failed to locate it.

LEADER GIVES UP AS POSSE HUNTS NEGROES

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 20—While a posse of over 100 state troopers, local police and townspeople scoured a murky swamp in Smith county, Miss., today for the ringleader of a Negro band that wounded four peace officers Sunday, the youthful veteran of the Marine Corps walked into the Hinds county jail here today and gave himself up.

The county jailer identified the man as Johnny Craft, member of a fighting Negro family, and object of a relentless search.

Somehow which embarrassed officers could not explain, Craft had slipped through a tight blockade they had thrown around the swamp. He had to walk almost 60 miles from the scene to get here.

Meanwhile, in the swamps southeast of here near Magee, Miss., the search continued for the only known Negro still at large—Johnnie's brother, Garfield.

Eight of the group were taken in the posse's dragnet yesterday. Heavily armed, they had melted into the swamps after Sunday night's shooting. But when the posse got close, most gave up meekly. One man was wounded in an exchange of gunfire with his pursuers.

SOFTER PEACE ASKED IN NOTE TO CONFEREES

sought to brush aside as unilateral action. Poland and Holland once denounced the Italian claim as completely unfounded.

The Italians also sought the elimination of the preamble reference to the fact that Italy "surrendered unconditionally." They wanted to substitute a phrase that "Italy was the first to break with the tripartite pact powers, accepting the terms of an armistice."

Point To Japan War

They also complained that the preamble dismissed "too cursorily" Italy's co-belligerence and contribution to the Allies in the last months of the war, while failing to mention that Italy declared war against Japan.

Even before the overthrow of fascism, the Italians claimed, the bulk of the Italian people were unwilling tools of Fascism and willing to help the allies. They cited the strikes in north Italy before Mussolini was overthrown.

Yugoslavia promptly sprang to the attack. A spokesman argued to the commission that the wording of the Italian treaty should be "aggravated, not alleviated."

As the preamble stands, the Yugoslavs pointed out, it makes no mention of Italy's other aggressions in Ethiopia, Albania, Spain and elsewhere.

Yugoslavs Made Charges

Yugoslavia charged that the Italian note tended to exaggerate the importance of the fascist regime, and that it tried to show that non-fascist Italy did not follow a policy of aggression. Among other charges, the Yugoslavs said, should be mention of the fact that Italy entered the war on the Axis side without a declaration of war.

The debate on the Italian preamble began after Andrei Vishinsky, deputy foreign minister of Russia, urged the delegates to get down to work and quit talking about procedure.

After three weeks of discussion during which the Soviets argued every small point, Vishinsky now was pressing for action, saying that there had been enough talk.

"Nobody knows what will happen in the next quarter of an hour," he said. "God himself doesn't know, and we can't possibly know sufficiently to try to fix our procedure that precisely in advance. We must not continue this interminable argument over procedure. I think we ought to start our work."

PAUL MOUSER'S CONDITION IS STILL SERIOUS

Condition of Paul Mouser, 20, Derby, who is suffering from an alleged self-inflicted gunshot wound, was reported slightly improved but still serious, Tuesday, in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus.

The shooting occurred Monday morning in the Mouser home and the youth was removed to the Columbus hospital by his mother, Mrs. Edna Mouser.

Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff said Tuesday that investigation by his deputies indicated that Mouser shot himself in the chest in a suicide attempt. The sheriff said he understood that the youth had brooded over the tragic death of his elder brother, Fred Mouser, 22, a World War II veteran who drowned July 9 in the waters of Big Darby creek near Commercial Point. Sheriff Radcliff said he learned that Paul had been invited to accompany his brother for a swim but that he declined.

The only long-run solution, Hatch said, would be to prohibit all private political contributions, with campaign expenses being carried exclusively by the federal government.

Hatch expressed belief that Mr. Truman would be the Democratic party's nominee in 1948, adding that "he certainly will be my choice—he is doing an excellent job under trying circumstances."

He said that the Democratic party must follow a "truly liberal policy, avoiding the extremes of reactionism on the one hand and radicalism on the other."

WARREN MAN DUE TO BECOME NEW LEGION LEADER

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20—Don W. Schoeppe of Warren, vice commander of the Ohio American Legion, today appeared virtually assured of election as state commander as the 1946 "victory" convention here drew to a close.

Schoeppe was unopposed, although there were reports that a World War II veteran would be nominated to run against him. Elections are scheduled for later today, after which the convention adjourns.

Legionnaires admitted that World War II vets are putting on "surprising pressure" despite the fact they are "poorly organized." In caucuses last night, new candidates for almost every office were being pushed by ex-GI groups.

"Such assurance can only be achieved as a result of the negotiation of a contract," he said in letters to Lewis and Van Horn. He said he wanted the mines returned to their owners "at the earliest possible date."

The mines have been in government possession since last May 22. They were seized by President Truman after the parties had rejected his proposal that they submit to arbitration the disputed issues for a new contract. These matters included a health and welfare fund raised by a tonnage assessment on coal and unionization of supervisory workers.

HUSBAND SEEKS SECOND DIVORCE FROM SAME WIFE

Lawrence E. Stout, Route 4, Circleville, filed suit Tuesday in Pickaway county common pleas court, seeking a second divorce from Mrs. Margaret Stout, 218 East Mingo street.

Declaring they were married Jan. 5, 1930, and that they were divorced and later remarried, Stout alleges that for the past 8 months his wife has refused to live with him. His petition says they are the parents of a son, Joe, 16. Stout charges gross neglect of duty.

Two other divorce suits were filed Tuesday.

Alleging extreme cruelty Mrs. Mary Albright Coontz filed suit against Walter W. Coontz, Route 1, Orient. She says they were married Oct. 20, 1938 at Robtown and that they are childless. Mrs. Coontz claims her husband is extremely jealous, that he is harassing, and that he falsely accused her of infidelity. She also asks for alimony and the restoration of her maiden name, Mary Albright.

Judge Emmitt L. Crist granted a temporary injunction restraining Coontz from selling or disposing of certain property and from interfering with Mrs. Coontz during the pendency of the suit.

Mrs. Rosabelle Mosley, Circleville, accuses James Mosley, Portsmouth, of gross neglect of duty. She says they were married Sept. 22, 1942 at Greenup, Ky., and that they are childless. Mrs. Mosley contends that her husband has refused to provide her with a home or with necessities of life and that she has been compelled to work and to live with her parents. In addition to a divorce she asks for alimony and restoration of her maiden name, Rosabelle Morris.

WELFARE WORK IS SUBJECT FOR KIWANIS CLUB

Russell Rine Urges Joint Efforts To Meet Ohio Needs

In an address to the Circleville Kiwanis Club last night, Russell R. Rine, field representative for the Ohio Welfare Council, cited statewide planning in the field of social welfare as one of the most urgent post-war needs in Ohio. Mr. Rine emphasized the fact that Ohio and its 88 counties now have the resources, an awareness of the need, the knowledge and experience with methods, if they will only get together in planning and coordinating their efforts.

Mr. Rine stated further, "We must make up our minds to apply community organization techniques to state affairs as they are now being applied to local problems in many communities. Community organization is a fairly new term now used to describe the process of matching resources with needs. It does not mean simply totalling up what everybody ought to have and then reaching into the public treasury for the necessary money. It is, in fact, the truly American truly democratic approach to problems. It involves the study of needs and general agreement on methods for meeting these needs."

Mr. Rine spoke of the reorganization during the past year of the Ohio Institute which had been active for more than 30 years in the field of social welfare research in Ohio. Under the new name, the Ohio Welfare Council, machinery is provided for statewide planning and action on welfare problems.

Mr. Rine stated that more than 30 different proposals have already been received from local communities for legislative and administrative changes to improve state and local welfare services. These proposals fall mostly in the areas covered by public assistance, mental hygiene and delinquency. Mr. Rine stressed the fact that the next few years will present a golden opportunity for the State of Ohio to work out a sound, logical and comprehensive pattern for local and state public welfare.

Mr. Rine was introduced by A. W. Bosworth.

Harry Barthelmas was introduced as a new member of the club. Guests were Charles Boardman, of the Northwest Kiwanis club, Columbus, and Robert Sprouse.

'MOM' HOSTESS TO GI 'BRATS'; 259 VISIT HER

COUGAR, Wash., Aug. 20—Neighbors pitched in to help gray-haired Mom Mulkey wash the dishes. Sunday's party—for 259 of her home-coming "brats"—had been a big success.

Invalid most of her life, and now going blind, Mom (Mrs. Purl A. Mulkey) celebrated her 53rd birthday by playing host to hundreds of GI's she'd "adopted" by mail while they were overseas and she was flat on her back in a hospital during the long war years.

"Brats" she'd called them in her letters.

And they'd loved it — the GI's who otherwise got no mail.

Most of them came—Normandy paratroopers, ex-colonels and privates. Filers who battled the Luftwaffe, Marines who fought on Iwo, GI's from the Philippines.

Most of them came, bringing with them the lucky nickels she had sent them in letters.

Fifteen of the "brats" couldn't. They died overseas.

Another 62—including Gen. Eisenhower—couldn't for other reasons, mostly pressure of business.

"But General Ike cabled me he'd kept the good-luck nickel," she said.

"She felt she had to do something during the war," he said. But she was in the hospital most of the time. So she wrote morale letters to the boys overseas, and it kind of snowballed. One GI would tell another."

APPROVAL FOR ABSENCE LEAVE IS NECESSARY

Veterans Urged To Make Advance Arrangements For Time Off

War veterans enrolled in educational institutions or in on-the-job training programs should obtain advance approval from the Veterans Administration before taking leave of absence it was pointed out Tuesday by James Shea, Pickaway county veterans' service officer.

When unauthorized leaves of absence are not satisfactorily explained, Shea said, veterans may forfeit their subsistence allowance for the time they are out of school or away from training.

The service officer explained that veterans enrolled under both the Vocational Rehabilitation Act for disabled veterans known as Public Law No. 16, and the Servicemen's Readjustment Act known as Public Law No. 346, are entitled to leave of absence only when it does not materially interfere with their progress.

Ordinary leave, Shea said, accrues at the rate of two and one-half days a month during the entire time a veteran is actually in education or training status, including the time he is on an approved leave. Accumulated leave cannot exceed 30 days, and no more than 30 days of leave may be taken in a 12-month period. Approved absences covering a period of one calendar week or more will be charged at the rate of five days for each seven consecutive days of leave.

Disabled veterans who are in training under Public Law No. 16 also are entitled to sick leave not to exceed 30 days in each 12-month period. Sick leave is adjudged to include all of the elapsed time from the beginning of absence from training until the veteran returns to training, including Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays.

Shea asserted that, ordinarily, enrollees are not permitted to exceed their accrued leave. However, advanced leave of absence not to exceed 30 days in a 12-month period and in excess of a veteran's accrued leave may be authorized in certain cases, such as illness or death in the veteran's immediate family or other compelling conditions beyond the veteran's control.

MUGS, COFFEE REPORT BARED

Othman Happy To Give Facts On Official Action On Colonel's Breakfast

BY FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—With a deep bow to my special west coast agent and to Maj. Gen. H. L. George, who confirms the correspondence involved as official, I can report at long last today on the sorry breakfast of Col. Otis M. Page.

He wanted doughnuts on the morning of March 10, 1944, when he landed at the naval air station at Oakland, Calif. There were no doughnuts. There was nothing to eat except fresh fruit, corn flakes and cream, eggs, creamed chipped beef, parker house rolls, and coffee. The colonel didn't like the coffee. He didn't like the cup in which it was served.

In an official report to the commander of the station, executive officer N. C. Lee said:

"When served with the coffee, he (Col. Page) looked at it, stirred it, and said, 'this is not coffee.' The steward's mate replied: 'This is the only coffee we have.' Col. Page repeated that it was not coffee. Later he complained that the cup in which his coffee was served had no handle. That is true—for all cups used in the mess hall are mug-type and have no handles."

Capt. James E. Dyer, commander of the naval air transport on the west coast, wrote a 510-word letter of explanation and apology next day to Col. Page in Dillon, S. C. The captain said in part:

"The doughnuts which you requested do not ordinarily form a part of the breakfast menu. A thorough investigation has been conducted concerning your contention that a beverage served you was not coffee. It was a standard brand of Navy coffee, brewed with a density which experience has shown is palatable to the average Navy man. While formerly mugs equipped with handles were a standard Navy issue, the Navy department has recently seen fit to provide cups not so equipped. If you have further constructive criticism to offer, etc., etc."

This correspondence finally reached Capt. Donald F. Smith of the Navy in Washington. He forwarded it to Gen. George, commander of the Army Air Force transport command. The general wondered in his reply about the density of the coffee.

"Is this," he asked, "tested with a hygrometer or judged by trained coffee-tasters? It has been suggested that a consumer of a particularly dense nature might fall to be pleased by a beverage which would seem ambrosial to most people."

Gen. George observed that doughnuts are one of the less destructible cornerstones of democracy and added: "The best medical advice obtainable here, however, is that only in rare cases does this fondness develop into a vice, or habit which cannot be suspended."

He said he and his staff had given special consideration to the suggestion that mugs with one or more handles be provided for the benefit of transient colonels.

"But experience has shown that under the stress of necessity even field officers will develop the prehensile strength required to use a plain mug effectively and without letting it fall to the table, ground, or lap," he said. "Older field officers may use two hands and this is also recommended for beginners."

The general closed the file on Col. Page's breakfast with this P. S.: "On the question of 'mugs' discussed herein, the reader should be forgiven if he becomes confused as to whether reference is being made to cups, or colonels."

All clear, Col. Page? Do you still like doughnuts?

GEORGE WHITE IS INVOLVED IN ANOTHER CRASH

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 20.—Producer George White, 53, scheduled to appear in court Friday in connection with a fatal automobile mishap, has been involved in a second accident in which he and a friend were injured, the California highway patrol reported today.

Bound for the horse races at Tijuana, Mex., White was reported to have been driving a convertible coupe which was struck from the rear by a bus near the international boundary.

The patrol report said Bill Williams, 60, riding in the rear seat of the car, suffered head and internal injuries.

White, bruised about the legs, later attended the races. He was said to have stopped quickly to avoid ramming a car ahead in the line-up to the international boundary. The rear of his car was damaged badly.

The highway patrol issued no citations.

The Broadway and Hollywood producer recently pleaded guilty to a charge of felonious hit-and-run driving in an accident in which a bride and bridegroom were killed crossing the highway. His plea for probation will be heard Friday. Previously, manslaughter charges against White were dismissed.

BODIES OF TWO MISSING GIRLS FOUND ON ISLAND

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 20.—The bodies of two young women, missing with their dates since leaving Charleston last Tuesday night in a small sailboat, have been returned here aboard a Coast Guard cutter.

The bathing suit-clad bodies of Betty Sturcken and Peggy Burk, both 18, were found late yesterday where they had apparently washed ashore on Otter Island, 35 miles southwest of here. No trace was found of their young companions, Jimmy Byrnest, 21, and Tommy Condon, 20, also of Charleston.

ANNUAL CAMP MEETING OPENS ON WEDNESDAY

Thousands To Attend Services At Mount Of Praise Aug. 21-Sept. 1

Final preparations were being completed Tuesday for the 29th annual 12-day camp meeting of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union which will begin Wednesday at the Mount of Praise on East Ohio street. It is one of the foremost yearly religious events in Ohio.

Several thousand visitors from Ohio and neighboring states are expected to attend. Four outstanding evangelists will preach in the services which will continue daily through Sept. 1.

The four clergymen are: Dr. T. M. Anderson, Wilmore, Ky., making his 15th appearance on the program; Dr. John R. Church, Winston-Salem, N. C.; the Rev. Bona Fleming, Columbus; and the Rev. E. Clay Milby, Benton, Ark. Others who will take a leading part in the series of camp meetings include the Rev. Charles Lucas, Dearborn, Mich., young people's evangelist; and the Rev. Edna Leonard, of Oak Hill, children's worker.

Prayer and praise service, missionary meetings, and Bible teaching will be daily features of the camp program. The service hours will be 7 a. m., 8 a. m., 10:30 a. m., 1 p. m., 2 p. m., 6 p. m., and 7:30 p. m., all times Eastern Standard.

Because the camp meeting will be the first since the lifting of wartime restrictions the committee in charge of arrangements has anticipated a record-breaking attendance and the committee members have been literally swamped with requests for accommodations at the camp grounds.

Visitors will be housed not only in the camp grounds but also in private homes, dormitories, hotels and tourists homes. Many will journey daily from their homes in nearby communities. The committee said that dormitory accommodations will be far less than the demand for such accommodations.

The committee includes the Rev. A. E. Sagar, pastor of the Circleville Church of Christ in Christian Union; the Rev. W. L. Cozad, Lancaster; and the Rev. E. A. Keaton, North Columbus, who has been active in every session of the camp since its inception in 1918.

AUTO MAKERS MAY NOT MEET NEW CAR GOALS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 — The civilian production administration said today that automobile manufacturers "may find difficulty" making the extra cars they have scheduled for August, September and October.

The manufacturers produced 220,321 passenger cars in July, topping June output by 78,008 units. Schedules called for 287,424 cars in August, 311,268 in September and 395,849 in October.

CPA said, however, that attainment of the new goals may be hampered by these factors:

1. Possible impact of demands for steel and cast iron by other industries such as farm machinery and construction.

2. Possible lack of enough lead for solder and other uses.

Truck production took a sharp turn in July, reaching a total of 84,458 units. This output, 34,719 more than June, followed a sharp drop through April, May, and June.

HOW THE AVERAGE INCOMES of American families have risen and how these incomes have been more equally distributed is indicated in this comparative chart of the semi-depression year of 1936 and the postwar year of 1945. The figures show that millions of families have joined the middle income groups although 70 per cent still fall below $3,000 a year. In the very low brackets (those making less than $1,000) the total has dropped from some 18,000,000 to about 9,000,000 families. In 1945, the middle group received $67,000,000,000—some 54 per cent of the total income; distributed. Some 17,000,000 families got from $2,000 to $4,000 and 3,150,000 ranged from $4,000 to $5,000. And while, in 1936, the average income in selected groups was about $11,600, only 2 per cent were included. Now 8 per cent average $7,820. (International)

DISTRICT MEETS FARM PLAN GOAL

40th Conservation Plan in Pickaway County For 1946 Is Written

The fortieth conservation farm plan to be written so far this year was completed last week, marking the 1946 goal set up for Pickaway county the first of the year.

Considering that this is the first year of operations for the Pickaway Soil Conservation District, the progress made is considered quite satisfactory. It is hoped that the forty plans goal may be exceeded by 12 or 15 more farms the follow-up field work now absorbs much of the Conservationist's time, thus reducing the time that may be devoted to planning. Farmers intending to plan during the winter season may well get their applications in to the district office in the Pythian building or apply to one of the district supervisors.

Farm ponds, included in the conservation plans for the Joseph C. Peters and Manford Oesterle farms were surveyed and staked last week and the work is to be started at an early date. Weather permitting, a design for a farm pond on the William Defenbaugh farm near Tarrion is to be made this week. Terracing work is gaining in popularity, reports Conservationist J. A. Muster, who states that three terraces were staked on the Oesterle farm in Madison township and at least one was completed. The first terrace was also staked on the Fred Corcoran farm near Williamsport.

New farm plans are in process of completion on the W. H. Crow farm in Harrison township, the ALBANY, N. Y.—New York State's division of motor vehicles is bothered by license plates which change color. Many plates have faded from the conventional deep yellow to a dark cream and can hardly be recognized as New York plates. They are made at Augum prison and officials believe wartime material shortages and ersatz paints may be at the root of the trouble.

According to tradition, Ranger Robert Rogers used to fool the Indians on the sloping sides of Rogers Rock, at the far end of Lake George, N. Y. Rogers rolled his pack over the steep precipice to the ice-bound lake below, re-traced his steps down a less precipitous slope, picked up his pack and went on.

FRIENDLY EXPORT

NEW Orleans businessmen are proving with a new project the old truth that the way to make money is give people good service. International House, the city's center for foreign trade, first conceived in 1943, is already paying off in dollars and good will for the future.

The organization, housed in a remodeled building, is geared to do two things for foreign visitors—to help them carry out their own ideas for business in the United States, and to encourage them to do business with Mississippi Valley producers, according to Coronet magazine.

A buyer who appears at International House is provided with countless courtesies. He is given office space and assigned a secretary who speaks his language. His hotel and travel accommodations are taken care of. He is interviewed by a staff member who learns about his business needs. As if by magic there appear factory representatives who can supply the furnaces, or textiles, or desk chairs, or whatever the buyer needs. He is told about the extensive shipping facilities of New Orleans.

The result, of course, is that the foreign businessman finds his way smoothed in a country foreign to him, and he finds it easy to procure the goods needed in his own country. He leaves behind him orders which will give financial aid to the New Orleans area, and he takes with him a friendly feeling for International House and the Americans he met there.

This good neighboring is good business, and because it promotes international trade, is good for the country as a whole.

FINLAND'S PEACE

THE sturdy integrity of the Finnish people, as exemplified in the payment of their national debts, should be taken into account at Paris when their claims are considered.

The group they have sent to the conference, headed by Premier Mauno Pekkala and Foreign Minister Carl Enckell, has three moderate requests to make. One is a two-year extension of the 1952 time limit of the financial reparations, another the right to use the Saimaa Canal, which was severed when Russia took over Karelia, and the third is permission to use the rail lines crossing Porkkala. The latter concession is made advisable by the fact that the Russian demand for a 50-year lease on the port of Porkkala would cut the rail lines between Helsinki and Turku, necessitating detours leading to expensive delays.

The peace conference may well bend every effort to satisfy these requests, giving one small but important country an even chance to get back on its feet.

Civilians going to Europe are paying first-class rates for troop ship accommodations—but they're not kicking to the management this time.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, August 20—(Continuing on the Palestine question): An Anglo-American investigation committee induced Mr. Truman to favor admitting 100,000 Jews to Palestine despite the British restrictions on immigration there. When the Moslems resented this further intrusion on territory in which they hold two-thirds of the population ((density of population is 154 people to the square mile) Anglo-American authorities generally recognized the immigration could not be carried forward successfully. This is supposed to have been the subject of the private meeting of Premier Attlee and State Secretary Byrnes at Paris before the 21 nation affair opened.

Thus both American, and possibly some British opinion, worked around toward an old recommendation that perhaps we could buy the acquiescence of the Moslems with an American loan of $300,000,000, and discussion has centered upon this point.

The British sidetracked the Jewish immigrants from the Black Sea ports, Poland, Rumania and other territory in Europe largely under Russian domination and sent them off to its Cyprus to put them in camps until their destination, if not their destiny, could be determined. I suspect, behind the $300,000,000 loan business that perhaps American, if not Anglo, authorities may have hoped to work the refugees eventually into Palestine (I notice Cyprus is not far from that ultimate goal).

One of my editors who wrote me hopefully for some solution of the matter after the recent violence, suggested a better remedy than our officials seem to be working toward. He said rightly: "I am hopeful that a homeland for the Jews may be found, whether it be Palestine, New York, California, Brazil or Africa, but at the same time the peoples now inhabiting the holy land have rights".

Indeed, they have more than rights. They have the power to make incessant trouble for the world, and the ability to keep the Jewish refugees from attaining what they really want more than a homeland, namely, a place of peaceful living.

Here we have hit the bottom of the problem. Palestine already is a Jewish homeland, well developed and a going proposition, but its future use is limited. There must be many places upon this earth where the refugees could go, where they could live free from molestation. Africa is a continent largely undeveloped and unsettled. The British have many mandates and controls there. The German and Italian governments in the last war thought the future of their world might rest upon the continent. Certainly there are spots in which the natural resources of soil and climate would contribute to a self-sustaining community, or a series of communities in areas without conflict. What of Oceania? Why does not the UNO do some constructive peace work by making a survey of the world places where refugees might settle? Does our government already have much evidence which would help build up a list?

The solution of immigration, I think, lies in this direction for these following reasons:

A loan to the Moslems or Arab nations for self-development would not buy peace but a hiatus. It might calm things down for a while concerning the immediate Palestine problem before us, but it would never make a permanent solution. The conflicts

"The Authority on Authorities"

REMEMBER YOUR PLAN
HOW OFTEN a player sets out upon a particular plan, and then abandons it just at the stage when it would produce results for him. That happens sometimes when a declarer fails to lay down the last card of a long suit, usually trumps, which would squeeze the opposition. It also occurs when a defender fails to repeat a suit which he had led, just because it didn't bring him any particular immediate results. This is especially disastrous if it is a trump lead which he refrains from repeating, when that is the only lead which would do the business. This lapse almost makes it seem as if he failed to remember his original plan to cut down ruffs.

Bid slightly differently at the various tables, this duplicate deal arrived at a spade small slam in most cases, and in each of them West, disliking leads from his side-suit honors, opened the spade 10. Some of those Wests had a still more important reason for the trump lead—the perfect fit shown by North and South indicated a great likelihood of ruffing ability which could be destroyed by trump leads.

After the first trick, won by South's Q, the defense varied. The worst was where South, after leading the diamond 5 to the second trick, saw West hop in at once with his A because he now saw a "harmless" lead away from his hand. It was the diamond 7 to the K. Let's see how harmless it was. The club A took the next trick, the diamond Q furnished a discard the club 3, a club was ruffed, heart A was used for a diamond discard, heart 3 was ruffed, then straight cross-ruffing of hearts and clubs completed the hand with the last five tricks, using five trumps.

At another table, when South to the second trick led a diamond, West played low, then won the diamond Q with the A and returned his last spade. That beat South two tricks.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN
"THE PLUMBER fixed that leak in the laundry; I stayed there with him until he had it so it wouldn't drip. . . ."

Anna's voice, no more approving of her unannounced return than it had been of her sudden going away, followed Flo up the stairs.

"And Mr. Giddings has called every day."

Flo ran up the last few steps. Every word Anna had said and everything upon which her eyes fell drew her back to that self she had been before she had gone away with Nell Winslow—and she did not want it so!

Anna had put her mail in a neat pile on her desk. She turned it over—announcements of summer sales, some bills, two formal-looking invitations. . . . At the bottom an air-mail letter addressed to her in Doug's big, even hand.

She held it a moment, then put it down and went about her room, unpacking her bag and putting her things away, her hands moving stiffly. When that was done she took off her clothes, bathed and wrapped a cool negligee about her. Now there was no further excuse to delay reading the letter; she crossed to the desk and, with a little lift of her shoulders, picked it up and tore it open.

My dear,

We arrived here in Rio yesterday. It was a comfortable flight down and most interesting to me as it was my first experience in long flying. We will go on in two days but I am promising myself to come back for a longer stay when we have finished in Lima. . . .

Her eyes skimmed over more about Rio, given in the detail that was characteristic of Doug. The heat of the day, the up-to-dateness of his hotel, a concert to which he had gone the evening before. Then she found it. . . .

There was much I wanted to say to you before I left but, the few times you were with me, it was too difficult for me to put it into words. It is difficult now to write it but I feel that I must. As I told you that night, I have known for some time that you are not happy in our marriage. That knowledge strongly influenced my decision to come with this commission, as I considered my absence would give you an opportunity to decide whether you want our present relations to go on, or to divorce me. I beg you not to make this decision hastily, for it is a very serious step to take. I'll be gone, perhaps, two months, and that will give you time for careful consideration of every angle and to search your heart. When you can tell me. . . .

There were a few more lines about the schedule for the remainder of their flight but Flo scarcely glanced at them. She folded the letter, put it into a pigeon-hole of the desk.

She was conscious of shock running up from her fingers to her heart. She answered it. . . . You knew it was coming! You didn't expect he'd go on, taking it. . . . A part of her shock was in Doug offering her a divorce—Doug who, when clients came to him with marital troubles, always tried to find some ground for reconciliation! That proved his desire to be free of it all!

Anna came with a glass of iced fruit juice. "Stella thought you'd like it, after your hot drive."

Flo turned from the desk. "It'll taste good. Thank Stella." She took the glass without looking at Anna.

"Will you want anything more, Mrs. Cooley?"

"Nothing, Anna. Good night."

She sat down on the chaise longue, suddenly afraid of the stillness of the big house and her loneliness in it. She was tempted to cross to the telephone on the desk, call someone, just anyone, Alida, Charlie, Neil—though Neil would think she was crazy, when they had parted only an hour or so ago! Cole Giddings!

It would be so much easier to slip back. . . . Drift. . . . Let Doug do the deciding. Forget those resolutions born of that last evening at Bide-A-Wee! But she stiffened, sprang to her feet with such abruptness that her drink spilled down over her. "Face it! If you're ever going to face things, begin now!"

She stood, frowning into the room. "Go and see Madame Tegner tomorrow!"

That idea had come to her this afternoon when they were a few miles outside of Stanton.

Neil had said, with a little laugh, "Well, we're back to the crowds, pal!" Then, in a soberer tone, "And I have to decide what I'm going to do with that story I'm working on!"

It had struck Flo that it was the first time Neil had spoken of the story since they had left Midland. But the decision waiting for her to make claimed her thought over any surprise or curiosity.

"I've got to decide. . . ." She had paused, flushed, then finished a little awkwardly, "I have to find a job."

Neil had thrown her a quick, sideways glance. "Seems to me you have one! Thinking of quitting it?"

"It isn't very honest to go on with it."

Neil had said dryly, her eyes on the road ahead, "Going in for a career? Or will you open a dress shop? That's what most women do—live on what they make, plus alimony, and feel grandly independent. . . ."

"I will not take a penny of alimony," Flo had retorted. "I've stung Doug enough as it is!" She had fallen into silence then, letting Neil surmise all she had not said. Then suddenly she had exclaimed, "You have given me an idea, Neil. There's one thing I do know and that's my clothes! I'm going to Madame Tegner and ask her for a job! Now laugh!"

Neil had not laughed. She had said, regretfully, "That's the crime—that the thing most women know most about is clothes! Well—you wear them beautifully—you'll make a good model!"

It had not been approval, and Neil's expression had suggested that she was leaving much unsaid, but Flo had tucked her idea away in a corner of her mind, to bring out later.

Considering it now, she saw it as the first step in her new way she was going to take. What the next step would be, she did not know, but she would. . . . One at a time.

She reflected that it wasn't unlike her old school tests, this test of herself she was meeting. She had the same grim, tight feeling that she always had before she sat down to an examination. . . .

It was a faint reassurance to recall that she had always gone through those school examinations, with flying colors! She remembered the pride with which she had taken her report card home, left it in a conspicuous place for her mother to find. She never had run to her mother with it, as Charlie always had!

The next morning she was downstairs, dressed for the street, before nine o'clock. "Just bring me some orange juice and coffee, Anna." Her eyes looked through Anna as she said it.

"Something's afoot," said Anna to Stella, in the kitchen, "to get her dressed like this hour!"

"It's none of your business," said Stella cheerfully.

To this Anna tossed her head. "Maybe 'tis. . . . I work for the mister!"

And a little after half-past nine Flo was going into Madame Tegner's shop.

She would lose no time in getting this over with and she knew that Madame Tegner, with the Frenchwoman's instinct to keep her eye on even her most trusted employees, opened her shop herself, and closed it when the day was over.

Flo found her arranging chairs and ash trays in the big mirrored salon. She greeted Flo effusively, lifting her hands, beaming, "La, la! Some little bird has told you my beautiful fall models have come!"

"No, I didn't know. I came. . . ." Flo paused to steady her voice against a sudden churning in her stomach, and finished a little bluntly, "To ask you for a job."

Madame Tegner's beam faded; a swift calculation puckered her face. She had been thinking about taking a debutante into her shop—other shops were doing it, paying them next to nothing. A model at cost price, perhaps. Mrs. Cooley would be better than a debutante. She would draw from the younger married set. She had more chic and sophistication than most, her age, Madame Tegner liked her underlip.

"That little bird again! Only yesterday, Mrs. Cooley, I was thinking I would invite some young lady of your class to come into my family here. A hostess, perhaps—is that what it is called? I receive my patrons—wearing my latest model!" Her enthusiasm grew. "We will serve tea as the English shops do—with, oh, a little, little rum in it! You will know how it should be done!" Madame Tegner put her plump, beaming hands together, palms cupped, as if they held this beautiful plum that had fallen into them—without her so much as shaking a tree! "We will send out special invitations—you will know better than I to whom they should go! Ah, it will be a great pleasure to give you what you call a job!"

STARS SAY—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Tuesday, August 20

AN exceptionally progressive and constructive period is the augury based on the current astral configurations of major planets. It is a time for the inauguration of ambitious and concrete objectives.

Ideals and purposes of a more subtle and idealistic significance should be prosecuted with strategy and on appreciation of undercurrent values and their unique development.

Not only industry and sound sense but intrigue and singular tactics are recommended. Be careful not to rub any important ones in a wrong direction.

Work out problems with gracious and flexible routines.

If It Is Your Birthday
Those whose birthday it is may look for an exceptionally constructive and productive year, in which material as well as subtle factors may be manipulated by straightforward and aggressive action.

Inner urges, intrigues and well-organized strategies have peculiar office in anchoring and promoting ambitious projects.

For particular rewards and emoluments, build upon firm foundations while the subtler and idealistic superstructures are bound to merit far-reaching returns.

Along the way, placate any forms of opposition with gracious and yielding tactics.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Germ Infection Resulting From Generally Poor Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

BOILS are due to an infection, usually with a germ known as staphylococcus aureus, but why boils should plague some people and leave others alone is a still unanswered question.

It would, however, be logical to seek the answer in some factor which might make the afflicted individual overly susceptible to infection. Thus Dr. R. J. McNeill Love of England thinks that the development of boils may result from generally poor health, overwork and fatigue.

He thinks that such things as too little food, the abuse of alcoholic beverages, and the lack of fresh air and exercise may be contributing factors. Other suggested causes are chronic kidney disease, lack of enough protein in the blood or the presence of an excessive amount of sugar in the blood.

Hair Root Infection

A boil is an infection around the root of a hair or in one of the fat glands in the skin. It starts as a small red swelling which gradually becomes larger and more painful.

After two or three days, the center becomes soft and a white top develops. This top breaks open and infected material is discharged. Then, in the majority of cases the condition gradually subsides.

Boils may occur in special locations such as at the root of an eyelash. In such cases they are called sties.

Boils in the outer ear canal are extremely painful because the skin is attached to the underlying cartilage and the swelling caused by the infection puts a great deal of pressure on the tissues.

Dangerous Complications
There are certain complications of boils which are more dangerous than the boil itself. These include an inflammation of the skin known as cellulitis, inflammation of the lymph glands called adenitis and the development of a number of secondary boils due to infection of nearby hair roots or fat glands.

In the prevention of boils, the general health should be built up. Vaccines sometimes may be helpful. When a boil first starts, X-ray treatments may bring it to a head more quickly, or cause it to disappear without ever coming to a head.

It has been suggested that in those who have boils frequently, the use of penicillin may be found advantageous. Ultra-violet ray treatments also may be helpful as a preventive measure.

Certainly, boils are so painful, annoying and disfiguring that no effort, either to clear them up or to prevent their recurrence, should be spared.

ive urges of a realistic as well as subtle and intriguing character, all built upon firm and lasting foundations.

Household Hints

If you wash your silver promptly after each meal in good, hot, soapy water, making sure that all food and grease are removed, it will seldom need polishing. For rinsing, use clear hot water and dry immediately with a soft, clean cloth. Jumbling too many pieces together in the dishpan is likely to cause noticeable scratches on them, so wash only a few pieces at a time, and handle carefully.

BIRDS BACK IN CELLAR AFTER DOUBLE DEFEAT

By United Press
Kansas City whipped Columbus twice, 3 to 2 and 4 to 3, to swap their cellar position for seventh place in the American Association today.

In other games last night, league-leading Louisville added another half game edge in shading St. Paul, 2 to 1, while second-place Indianapolis split a doubleheader with Milwaukee. Milwaukee beat Toledo, 5 to 2.

Kansas City's Tom Reis took a six-hit mound duel in beating Columbus in the first game of the twilight-night doubleheader. The Blues gave him all the runs needed in the first inning. Carl Derosa also turned in a good performance in the nightcap by scattering seven hits over the route to complete the twin killing for Kansas City.

CHS GRIDDERS IN FIRST DRILL ON WEDNESDAY

Seven Home Games On Nine Game Schedule For 1946 Footballers

Cincinnati high school football field will be a scene of activity again Wednesday afternoon when the first 1946 football practice session is held.

Coach Steve Brudzinski has asked every high school boy interested in playing football to be at the field at 3:30 p. m. He plans a short meeting to talk the situation over, then grid drills will start.

Athletes who expect an easy program probably will be disappointed. Coach Brudzinski says the first four days, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, will be devoted to one-session-a-day programs with stress being put on conditioning.

After that comes hard work. Two drills a day in football togs start Monday and continue until school starts.

Returning Wednesday will be nine letters from the 1945 team. Joining them will be several other boys who received quite a bit of experience last Fall and others who practiced with the varsity during last Fall's drills. Also expected back are two or more boys who left school to serve in the armed forces during the war.

Several improvements have been made at the field this year. New lights have been added and there are now 72 lights to make the field one of the lightest in this part of the state.

Home games will be featured in this year's schedule, which begins September 13. The Tigers will play six straight home games before going to Greenfield October 24. Then they have another game at home before closing the season at Washington C. H., making seven home games and only two on the road.

The schedule:
September 13—Columbus Rosary.
September 20—Hillsboro.
September 27—Westerville.
October 4—Washington.
October 11—Chillicothe.
October 18—Wilmingon.
October 24—At Greenfield.
November 1—Grove City.
November 8—At Washington C. H.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

involved might die down for a while, but a loan would hardly extinguish them.

I do not believe it is possible for a man to attain peace by going where he is not wanted. In this case, to turn Palestine over fully to the Jews, the British fear would arouse the Moslem world. What would happen to the two-thirds Moslem population which, as my friendly editors says, also has rights? We would not consider for a moment being a party to a movement to chase them out, nor would the objective Jews with whom I have discussed the subject. These Jews especially see it is no longer a question of religion or homeland, but has grown into a deeper world problem and therefore should have a world solution free of politics.

Then there comes another point. These people are not refugees from permanent starvation. European soil has always supported its citizens. When rebuilt in a year or two, it should support itself amply again. The refugees, therefore, have a somewhat political aspect. Palestine is just about the next to the last place in the world a normal intelligence would look for political peace at this time.

I hope my purposes will not be misunderstood by anyone. I do not profess to be an expert, but I have the feeling that sometimes the experts become so deeply involved in their own subjects that a little objective analysis may furnish some light to them. I know that when I become involved myself, I seek out objective advice. I have found that if it errs in understanding full details, it is at least good spirited in judgment.

I close the question with a quotation from the editor who asked my news opinion in this instance, for his words will serve the reader well, he said.

"Often I do not agree with you—but that has nothing to do with whether you are right or not. I sometimes get an obstructed view of things." Who does not?

Opinions expressed by the writer in this column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Cincinnati Herald.

FRISCH SAD AS PIRATES RETURN

Angry Dodgers First Foe In Buc Park; Cards Gain With Win Over Reds

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The combined pressure of a union movement, the Brooklyn Dodgers and last place weighed heavily to do on balding Frankie Frisch, the dagger-tongued Dutchman who asks just one more chance to save his job as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

But the odds are stacked against him. As Fordham Frankie would say, "It looks like a cold deck!"

Tonight's game with the Dodgers epitomizes the disastrous season which has plagued Frisch. Twenty-three games off the pace in last place, the Pirates catch an angry band of Dodgers, their league lead cut to one and a half games last night when Ken Burkhardt pitched the Cardinals to an eight-hit, 6 to 0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

But before they take the field, the Pirates must vote on whether they want the American Baseball Guild as their collective bargaining election.

That's Frisch's main "beef." "When we get off trains, nobody asks us how we feel or about our coming game, it's always unions and guilds," Frisch said when a third band of Bucs arrived at Pittsburgh today from their west-east tour.

"I don't have anything against unions. I'm entirely neutral. But we can't win ball games when union trouble is foremost in the players' minds," he said.

It's the lament of a discouraged man, who figures that fate has stacked the deck on him. When guild director Bob Murphy picked the Pirates as his labor "guinea pig" he didn't help Frisch's managerial problems. Then the Bucs were sold and the one-time Fordham flash finds himself without a single red-hot supporter among the four new owners.

New president Frank E. McKinney has announced that the owners have drawn up a list of 11 possible managers for next season and added, almost as an afterthought, that Frisch was among them.

Tonight's Pirate game provides another twist in that Dodge manager Leo Durocher is on the list and it is no secret that Bing Crosby, one of the Pirate owners, is strong for the dapper, swift-talking Leo, who sometimes thinks he should be on the radio and in pictures, too.

With the Cardinals driving hard for first place, riding a three-game winning streak, Frisch would like nothing better than to sweep his two-game series with the Dodgers. It might not save his job but it would save a lot of wounds.

The Red Birds, prepping for the Dodgers' invasion of St. Louis this weekend, slammed Ewell Blackwell and Bobby Malloy for 12 hits last night to defeat the Reds behind Burkhardt.

The heat of the National League pennant fight became evident when the usually mild-mannered Bill McKechnie, Cincinnati manager, was ejected in the seventh inning by umpire Dusty Boggess for protesting a called ball on Red Schoendienst and outfielder Max West of the Reds was chased in the next inning for heckling Umpire George Barr.

BUCS WILL BE WELL PAID, NEW PRESIDENT SAYS

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 20.—The Pittsburgh Pirates will be one of the best paid teams in the major leagues, regardless of the outcome of today's collective bargaining election, Frank E. McKinney, head of the four-man syndicate which recently purchased the club, said.

The Pirates' new president declined to comment on the history-making election because "I don't know what the policy of the new owners will be toward the American Baseball Guild."

McKinney, wealthy banker who owns controlling stock in the Indianapolis Indians of the American Association, emphasized, however, that he anticipated no salary trouble with his Pirates, adding that "for the past few years my players have been the highest paid in the Association."

"I understand Pittsburgh players average the second highest pay in the National League and I anticipate no trouble at all—I never had any trouble getting along with anyone," he said.

Besides his former Slegwald had a single in his times up. "Skeet" Smallwood got two of the three hits off Valentine. Sims moved behind the plate in the absence of Grover and did a good job of catching for Blue Ribbon.

Trapshooters Looking Ahead To 'Roaring Grand' At Vandalia Friday

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 20.—The nation's best scatter-gunners drew heads today on the coveted men's amateur clay target championship of North America, and the women's version of the same title, as the 47th renewal of the Grand American trap shooting tournament entered its second day.

All contestants were registered for the men's 200-bird race, with a 16-yard rise. In the women's division of the North American championship, only the first 100 targets will count.

Interest in the tent city, surrounding the American Trap Shooting association's historic grounds, already has turned to Friday's Grand American handicap—"the roaring grand"—the blue ribbon event of trap shooting which carries a $10,000 purse.

High on the list of favorites for the $1,000 first prize was Vic Reinders of Waukegan, Wis., the University of Wisconsin professor who yesterday won the champion of champions event with a perfect run of 100 broken birds.

Reinders successfully defended the title he won in 1945 while he was an Air Corps gunnery instructor at Laredo, Texas; and at the same time won a shoot off with Herschel Cheek of Clinton, Ind., for the open championship fired as a preliminary event Sunday. Cheek had a 49 x 50 for the shoot off and finished with 98 x 100.

The first day's only other perfect 100 score was fired by Parr A. Rhines, a hardware dealer from Marseilles, Ill.

Another defending champion successfully defended her title when Mrs. Ruth Knuth of Indianapolis, Ind., fired a 96 x 100 in the race for women state champions. Close behind her and a contender for today's North American title was Ruth Cuthbert of Winchester, Va., with a 95 x 100.

One pre-tournament favorite disappointed when young Joad Devers, the 15-year-old schoolboy who recently won the Ohio championship, fired a 94.

His six missed birds dropped him into a tie for second place in the junior division, which was won by Fred D. Waldoek of Sandusky, O., with a 96. Tied with Devers in the runner-up spot was R. L. Andrews, 16, of Little Rock, Ark.
